Hannes Lárusson re-constructed Meðaholt, the family's traditional turf farm house near Reykjavik, one of a few still left in Iceland. Hannes will be speaking on the architectural and aesthetic parallels between the old farmhouse and new green building standards like LEED®.

Hannes is one of Iceland's major performance artists, exhibiting his work regularly in Europe and North America for over 25 years. His work often deals with the connection between international contemporary art and cultural heritage, with references to craft and architecture.
